CALL FOR PROPOSALS

Submission Deadline: June 15, 2020

Engaging Writers in an Ever-Changing World

Whether you consider technology, population, environment, culture, values, or economics, there is no denying that society has changed dramatically over the past 20 years, and is continuing to do so at a rapid pace. In addition, our students and the ways they learn have dramatically changed how we approach our craft.

Indiana Teachers of Writing Fall 2020 Conference invites you to join the conversation in seeking to develop writers of all ages. How have we adapted to new platforms and methods of teaching in the face of unforeseen circumstances? How do we meet the needs of increasingly diverse populations and cultivate literacy among all students? How do we make writing relevant for an unpredictable future?

Our feature presenter is a former English teacher and current ELL director who will share strategies for reaching not only ELL students in our classrooms but all students. She is a dynamic, interactive presenter who works with students daily and understands how Indiana's student populations are ever-changing.

This call for proposals seeks submissions for 50-minute interactive sessions that address how teachers of writing, in all disciplines and at all instructional levels, are supporting and engaging students in our rapidly changing world.

The deadline for proposal submissions is June 15, 2020. ITW will notify all submitters of the selection results by July 1, 2020.
